Rhode Island Statewide Planning Program
265 Melrose Street
Providence, Rhode Island 02907

The Rhode Island Statewide Planning Program is established by Chapter 42-11 of the General Laws as the central planning agency for state government. The work of the Program is guided by the State Planning Council, comprised of state, local, and public representatives and federal and other advisors. The Office of State Planning, a division of the Department of Administration, is the staff component of the Program.

The objectives of the Program are to plan for the physical, economic, and social development of the state; to coordinate the activities of governmental agencies and private individuals and groups within this framework of plans and programs; and to provide planning assistance to the Governor, the General Assembly, and the agencies of state government. The Program prepares and maintains the State Guide Plan as the principal means of accomplishing these objectives. The State Guide Plan is comprised of a series of functional elements which deal with physical development and environmental concerns, the economy, and human services.

This technical paper is one of a series prepared by the Office of State Planning. These papers present information developed through Program activities to state and federal agencies, local governments, and the public.

Program activities are supported by state appropriations and federal grants. The contents of this report reflect the views of the Statewide Planning Program, which is responsible for the accuracy of the facts and data presented herein. The contents do not necessarily reflect the official views or policies of other sponsoring agencies. This publication is based upon publicly-supported research and may not be copyrighted. It may be reprinted, in part or in full, with the customary crediting of the source.

Preface

The demographic variables age, sex, and race are tabulated in this technical paper on three geographic levels: state totals (Table 2), city and town totals (Table 3) and census tract totals (Table 4). They are disaggregated by 16, 5-year age groups, sex and white and non-white racial categories. Tabulations are from Sumary Tape File 2A, Table B8 with the exception of city and town totals which are programmed into the data base from Summary Tape File 2B. Summary Tape File 2 contains 100 percent data.

This paper is a product of the Office of State Planning's State Data Center Program for census dissemination as outlined in Task 407 of the Annual Work Program, 1984-1985. Staff responsible for preparation of this material are Chester F. Symanski, Principal Research Technician, James A. Andrade, Senior Computer Programmer, Joyce S. Karger, Junior Planner and Anna M. Roccio, Word Processing Typist.

INTRODUCTION

The data appearing in this paper are base data tabulated to provide benchmark totals used in making population projections employing the cohort-component method for state totals and the cohort-ratio method for city and town totals. The cohort-component method considers a group of persons passing together through time, starting from anticipated birth totals produced by older groups of females. The projection model currently used in Rhode Island's Estimates and Projection Program disaggregates age by five-year age groups. The annual five-year female population totals which function as the denominator for calculating the yearly fertility rates are obtained by analyzing the 1980 Census by single years, then aging each of the female totals for each age group by advancing each total to the succeeding age group. The single ages are then combined into five-year age groups.

In addition to their use in computing birth rates by age of mother, this base data is used in calculating five-year survival and migration rates. Survival rates are computed from life tables calculated by the National Center for Health Statistics. Population projections are obtained by multiplying the initial base year totals (in five-year age groups) by appropriate five-year survival rates. Migration rates are calculated by finding the ratio of the migration total to the base population, and then assigning this number to the appropriate unit of time measurement. These totals are converted to five-year rates and are used in the cohort-computer program. Further explication of the basic methodology used in making population projections can be found in Technical Paper 73: Rhode Island Socio-Economic Projections, the State Cities and Towns, and Analysis Zones 1980-2000 and The Methods and Materials of Demography written by Henry S. Shryock and Jacob S. Siegal and Associates, published by the Bureau of the Census, 1971.

After state total population projections have been made by age, sex and color groups, any activity characteristic of these particular groups within the total population can be forcasted. For example, the tabulations in this paper can also be used to estimate school enrollment, labor force status, housing need and the elderly population. This data is therefore useful to social, economic, political, production, health and education planners.

GLOSSARY

1. AGE	Age at last birthday means the number of years completed from birth to April 1, 1980. Age is tabulated by single years of age and by different groupings, such as five-year age groups. Basic records identify single years to 112. Tabulations on age are essential in the computation of basic measures relating to the factors of population change, in the analysis of the factors of labor supply, and in the study of the problem of economic dependency.
2. CENSUS TRACTS	Are statistical subdivisions of counties, ideally containing an average of 2,500-8,000 inhabitants and delineated, using Census Bureau criteria, by local authorities within Metropolitan Statistical Areas. There are 213 census tracts in Rhode Island. The entire state is tracted. They are relatively homogeneous with repsect to population characteristics, economic status and living conditions.
3. COHORT COMPONENT METHOD	A statistical method used to compute population projections. It is regarded as the standard projection approach by planners. This method considers a group of persons passing together through time, starting from anticipated birth totals produced by preceeding or older groups of females.
4. DEMOGRAPHY	Is the scientific study of human populations, their size, distribution, and composition and the changes that occur in these phenomena through the process of fertility (births), mortality (deaths), and migration.
5. FERTILITY	Refers to the actual reproductive performance of a population. Births are dependent upon population composition and socio-economic circumstances.
6. MIGRATION	Is the movement of population; more exactly, the movement of people across a specified boundary for the purpose of changing residence. Leaving one place is called outmigration and arriving at another place, the destination, is called immigration.
7. MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS	A primary political and administrative subdivision of a county. MCDs are most frequently known as townships, but in some states they include towns, magisterical districts and other areas.

8. PLACE	A concentration of population which may or may not have legally prescribed limits, powers or functions. Most of the places identified in the 1980 Census are incorporated as cities, towns, villages or boroughs. Towns in Rhode Island are not considered as places for census purposes.
9. POPULATION	The number of enumerated people enumerated in households, adjusted for comparability over time to account for changes in the rules for enumeration.
10. RACE	The concept of race as used by the Census Bureau reflects self-identification by respondents; it does not denote any clear-cut scientific definition of biological stock. For persons with parents of different races who could not provide a single response to the race question, the race of the person's mother was used.
11. RATIO	Demonstrates the numerial relationships of two measurements. Generally, these two measurements come from the same population or sample. A ratio is sometimes expressed as a fraction.
12. SEX	Refers to a person's gender - male or female. Ascertained on a complete count basis by the Census Bureau. The usefulness of the sex charateristic in demographic statistics lies in its cross-classification with other characteristics which may be of interest such as educational status, racial composition and citizenship status.
